A morphological assessment of mid-trimester placentas from women who later develop premature rupture of the membranes. Pregnancies with premature rupture of the amniotic membranes (PROM) have an increased risk of delivery before 32 weeks and may lead to an increased incidence of fetal or neonatal morbidity and mortality. As part of a larger study, the placenta was assessed for the presence of pathological features in placentas from women with PROM and compared with placentas from pregnant women without PROM. It was not possible to confirm any statistically significant association between the absence or presence of pathological features in the placenta and the outcome of the pregnancy in the present study. Further studies are needed to determine whether these placental features are causally associated with the development of PROM or simply a secondary response to the process. Ashley M. French President Emmanuel Macron attends a ceremony in Bab Raga, south of the Mali capital Bamako, October 24, 2019. REUTERS/Thaïs Mahamat Fallu PARIS (Reuters) - A senior leader of the French extreme right, the National Front (FN), has been arrested for trying to extort money from a businessman, after threatening to publish a list of several businessmen around France that he said were linked to an embezzlement case, judicial sources said on Tuesday. The suspects were detained after being arrested by specialist police in two simultaneous operations, one in eastern France and the other in northern France, two weeks apart. A court in the city of Nantes and that in the western city of Bordeaux issued arrest warrants for the FN leader, two vice-presidents and a regional vice-president of the party, the sources said. The party said it was not aware of the arrests, adding it was "in no way a party to the accusations." "Our party abhors any form of blackmail or intimidation," the party said in a statement. The FN leader, who was not named, demanded 2.5 million euros ($2.8 million) from the businessman through an intermediary, the sources said. Emilio Bonifazi, a lawyer for the businessman, told Reuters his client had not paid the sum, which he said was nearly three times the sum allegedly sought by the National Front leader. Bonifazi said that his client was the victim of fraud and was an old business friend of the party leader. If convicted, the FN leader faces a maximum of seven years in prison. He was arrested at his home in Nantes at around 4 a.m. local time on Monday, along with the other suspects. French investigators are looking into more than 200 cases of embezzlement and fraud, according to media reports. Biggest updates: New channel, new owner. Looking for a new home for you?
